

Welcome to Region Halland

New employees in all care-related professions and employees with close contact with patients who are working in a patientenvironment, such as those who perform patienttransports and cleaning, must submit a healthdeclaration.

Filling in the health declaration means that you fill in your personal information and tell us about any stays abroad, vaccinations and certain diseases.

The purpose of the healthdeclaration is to find out whether you can be a carrier of any infection, such as resistant bacteria or tuberculosis and if you have the vaccinations needed to avoid being exposed to anything infectious. It is important that you answer all the questions in the healthdeclaration truthfully, even if it may seem as if a question is not relevant.

After answering the questions you sign with your bank ID and the information is sent digitally to Region Halland's company care Falck. Based on your answers in the healthdeclaration, Falck makes an infectionriskanalysis. Your manager will only be informed if there are any reasons for you not to work or if you should be offered a vaccination. If the healthdeclaration needs to be supplemented, Falck will contact you via email. In the event that the infectionriskanalysis shows that there are obstacles, you will be contacted by Falck with detailed information on why obstacles are considered to exist. Your manager will then contact you to access the information you received from Falck.

The process at Falck takes about three weeks.

If you do not have a bank ID, the healthdeclaration is available as a printable file. After printing and completing, send this in an envelope by post to:
